

Catalogue of an Exhibition of Selected Works of The Poets Laureate of England ♦ ♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2022 with funding from Kahle/Austin Foundation

The Publication Committee of the Grolier Club certifies that this copy of a "Catalogue of an Exhibition of Selected Works of The Poets Laureate of England" is one of an edition of three hundred copies, on hand-made paper, printed in the month of March, 1901.

Engraved for the Grolier Club by S. Orlent Edwards from the painting by Hans Holbein the Younger

BEN JONSON

CATALOGUE OF AN EXHIBITION OF SELECTED WORKS OF
THE POETS LAUREATE OF ENGLAND

NEW YORK
THE GROLIER CLUB, New York
MCM I

Z
28-77
6-7

Copyright, 1901, by
THE GROLIER CLUB OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK

CONTENTS

BEN JONSON, AFTER THE PAINTING BY GERARD VAN HONTHORST . Frontispiece	PAGE vii
INTRODUCTION	vii
THE POETS LAUREATE CHRONOLOGICALLY ARRANGED	xviii
PART I THE VOLUNTEER LAUREATES .	i
PART II POETS LAUREATE BY ROYAL LET- TERS PATENT	13
AUTHORITIES ON THE POETS LAUREATE	73
PORTRAITS	74

INTRODUCTION

AFTER the fleeing Daphne was transformed into a laurel tree to escape the pursuing god of the lyre, the laurel branch was assigned to Apollo as one of his attributes. Victors in the Pythian games held in his honor were crowned with it; it was the symbol of purification and atonement; it was used, like the olive, as a sign of truce; it was proof against lightning; and, Apollo being the god of poetry too, the Laurea Apollinaris was given for poetic merit. Ever since the days of Helicon and Parnassus, excellence in poetry has been crowned, at first literally and then figuratively, with laurel. The Romans adopted the custom, and it flourished in the Middle Ages and the Renaissance, when learning was a craze and the recognition of learning the delight of princes and people.

INTRODUCTION

When the training of scholars was in the hands of the religious houses, which later became universities, it was to them a privilege to reward merit with the laurel. At first laureation signalized merit in law and medicine, but later the wreath was bestowed for grammar alone. It was a distinction like the sheepskin nowadays, and was given with dignified public ceremony. Spain, Italy, France, Germany and England all had their laureations. In some countries the wreath was bestowed by the universities, in others by the sovereign, while in the case of Petrarch the Roman Senate gave the crown.

A story told by Austin and Ralph serves to show that the title was sometimes bestowed carelessly or in jest. Leo X, hearing of the ludicrous performances of a poet who, having come up to Rome to recite an epic before a delighted and amused audience, received as a reward a crown of laurel, vine and cabbage leaves, sent for him to the palace. Here the laureate was lavishly entertained, but it was stipulated that he was not to have any wine unless he extemporized a certain number of Latin verses, and for every false quantity he made his wine was to be watered.

"On one unhappy occasion, holding forth a goblet pallid with immoderate dilution, the poet assuaged his despondency by the following epigrammatic conceit:

INTRODUCTION

"In cratere meo Thetis est conjuncta Lyæo:
Est Dea juncta Deo, sed Dea major eo.

"Such refined torture on the part of His Holiness amused their Eminences the Cardinals, and once excited some literary sparring between the accomplished Leo and his dependent. . . .

"Archipoeta facit versus pro mille poetis, once indignantly yet proudly exclaimed Querno.

"Et pro mille aliis archipoeta bibit," was the ready and reproving reply.
"Porrige," exclaimed the bard in despair,
"Porrige quod faciat mihi carmina docta, Falernum.

"The pontifical punster smiled as he observed:

"Hoc etiam enervat debilitatque pedem."

In England an officer called the King's Versifier had been attached to the court long before the time of Edward IV, and may have been the descendant of the still earlier harper or minstrel. Chaucer is thought by some to have been a regular court poet; but there is nothing to show this, or even that he was laureated by the University. The assumption rests upon the two facts of his styling himself

INTRODUCTION

"poet laureate," and his having received, at one time, the grant of a pitcher of wine daily at the port of London, and at another the grant of a tun of wine.

John Kay, of whom little is known, was a poet laureate attached to the court of Edward IV.

Andrew Barnard, who was appointed by Henry VIII., wrote Latin verses and hymns.

John Skelton, scholar, wag, and satirist, also served Henry VIII. in this office, and was the last to bear the title in its primary significance. He won his laurels at Oxford, as he himself tells us :

"A king to me mine habit gave:
At Oxford, the University,
Advanced I was to that degree;
By whole consent of their senate,
I was made Poet-Laureate."

To his ability as a scholar Caxton bears witness in the preface to a book printed in 1490: "But I pray Master Skelton, late created poet-laureate in the University of Oxford, to oversee and correct the said book, and to address and expound where, as shall be found fault, to them that shall require it. For him I know sufficient to expound and English every difficulty that is therein. For he hath late translated the epistles of Tully and the book of Diodorus Siculus, and divers other works out of Latin into English, not in rude and old language, but in polished and ornate terms craftily, as he that hath read Virgil, Ovid, Tully and all the other noble poets and orators to me unknown. And also he hath read the nine muses, and understands the musical sciences, and to whom of them each science is approved. I suppose he hath drunk of Helicon's well. Then I pray him, and such other, to correct, add, or minish where as he or they shall find fault," etc.

INTRODUCTION

In 1591 Queen Elizabeth conferred upon Edmund Spenser a grant of £50 a year; this, with the fact that he is called the "new laureate" in "Piers Pennilesse," is the only ground for thinking him a court poet laureate.

Hamilton quotes a good story told in connection with the pension: Lord Burleigh exclaimed, "What; all this for a rhyme?" and Elizabeth replied: "Then give him what is reason." Spenser waited some time, but no money came, so he wrote the lines:

"I was promised on a time
To have reason for my rhyme;
But from that time to this season,
I have had nor rhyme nor reason."

There is a tradition that Daniel was poet laureate to Queen Elizabeth, but no evidence can be produced to prove it. He held other public offices, however. In the Calendars of State Papers, under date of January 31, 1604, appears the following notice:

INTRODUCTION

"Grant to Edward Kirkham, Alexander Hawkins, Thomas Kendall and Robert Payne, of license to train up children, to be called 'Children of the Revels to the Queen,' and to exercise them in playing within the Blackfriars in London, or elsewhere; all plays to be allowed by Sam Danyell."

Whatever the exact title of his office may have been, its function, it would appear, was the licensing of plays. In 1618 a license granted him to print his "History of England" describes him as "our well-beloued seruant Samuel Daniell, one of the Groomes of the Priuy Chamber, to our deerest wife the Queen."

Daniel was as well mannered for his time as he was "well-languaged," but he was extremely sensitive, and when Jonson was made court poet he retired to his farm.

However these early poets may have obtained their titles of poets laureate to the various kings they served, the first regularly appointed incumbent was Ben Jonson. The earlier, or volunteer poets as they were called, seemed to have served upon special occasions merely, and to have received only occasional pay. King James made Ben Jonson his court poet, and Charles I confirmed him in the appointment by letters patent and an annual salary. The office has been filled almost continuously from then till now.

INTRODUCTION

The duties of a poet laureate do not seem to have been clearly defined. Charles gave his letters patent to Jonson "in consideration of the good and acceptable service done vnto vs and our said father by the said Benjamin Johnson, and especially to encourage him to proceede in those services of his witt and penn, which wee have enjoined vnto him, and which we expect from him." Jonson found more to do than most others in his position, owing to the climax of popularity of the masques which "were made and performed for the Court and the houses of the nobles, and the scenery was as gorgeous and varied as the scenery of the play house proper was poor and unchanging."¹ "As a masque-writer he gave lasting worth by sheer poetic force to an unreal and artificial genre." At first an annual New Year's Ode was written by the laureate and, set to music, was, like the masques, performed in the king's presence. Shadwell, of his own accord, added an annual Birthday Ode.

Says Gibbon: "From Augustus to Louis the muse has been too often false and venal, but

¹ Stopford Brooke, "Engl. Lit.," Ch. IV, Sec. 89.

INTRODUCTION

I much doubt whether any age or Court can produce a similar establishment of a stipendiary poet, who in every reign, and at all events, is bound to furnish, twice a year, a measure of praise and verse, such as I believe may be sung in the chapel and in the presence of a Sovereign."

It was quite natural that such perfunctory affairs should, in the hands of mediocre poets, too often degenerate into empty smoothness or mere doggerel, and it is not surprising to find that the sentiments of Peter Pindar, expressed in the following lines, were shared by many others :

"WILL WHITEHEAD, Sire, hath wish'd the world
good night,

Pray who shall fabricate your next year's Ode?

As I most laudably can read and write,

Let me the line with George's virtues load!

"Sire, if you'll make me Laureat, I declare

I'll chaunt you, if you do but take the air;

And if it should your Royal humour suit,

I'll sing your horse to boot.

"But, Sire, perchance you've been be-rhym'd so long,

Your Royal Ear is sick of BIRTH-DAY SONG!

In this case, you'll be better serv'd by NONE?

For, order me the SALARY and WINE,

I'll whisper to APOLLO and the NINE,

And so contrive to let the ODE ALONE."

With time and contumely both New Year's and Birthday Odes were dropped: Pye, in the days of George III., was the last laureate from whom they were regularly expected, and now the official singer is free to find his own time and theme for celebrating the glories of the reign.

INTRODUCTION

The position has, with rare exceptions, been a partisan one. Dryden and Southey became political turncoats to attain it, while Jonson as well as Dryden found it sufficient excuse for changing his faith. Partisan merit in a poet does not necessarily mean poetical merit, and this must be borne in mind in a perusal of the lives and writings of the poets laureate. The successful recipient of court favor has, from the first, been a target for the wit and sarcasm of other poets, and so low did the reputation of the office fall during the tenure of some of its occupants, that it came to be the laughing-stock of all.

“That Laurel, once by Dryden worn,
But since by many dunces borne,
Each rival dunce cry’d fie on!
The boasted laurel was, they said,
No more than a poor — —
At Court call’d Dann-de-Lion.”

A collection of the satires, gibes, and epigrammatic remarks which have been written on the laureates, from Jonson to “Miss” Tennyson, would make far better reading than a collection of their official odes.

INTRODUCTION

The pay of Charles I for his laureate's services was an annual hundred pounds and a tierce of the poet's favorite Canary wine, and this remained the stipend of the office until Pye's time, when the sum of £27 was substituted for the wine. It is worthy of notice that many of the poets seemed to inherit an extravagant taste for the wine along with the pension. Jonson "would many times exceed in drink; Canarie was his beloved liquor. Then he would tumble home to bed, and when he had thoroughly perspired, then to studie." Shadwell was charged with many immoralities. Eusden "was a person of great hopes in his youth, though at last he turned out a drunken parson." Cibber loved his bottle, and even Pye was called "a pleasant, convivial man."

The fact that certain poets have occupied the post of laureate adds little to their reputation, but a lustre is shed upon the office by such names as "The mighty Prince of Poets, learned Ben," Wordsworth and Tennyson.

"I sent thee late a rosy wreath,
Not so much honouring thee,
As giving it a hope that there
It could not withered be;

"But thou thereon did'st only breathe,
And sent'st it back to me,
Since when it grows, and smells, I swear,
Not of itself, but thee."

INTRODUCTION

The following lines, from a parody on one of Tennyson's poems in the "Book of Ballads: Edited by Bon Gaultier" may not be in too light a key :

" Oh that would be the post for me !
With plenty to get, and nothing to do
But to deck a pet poodle with ribbons of blue,
And whistle a tune to the Queen's cockatoo,
And scribble of verses remarkably few,
And at evening empty a bottle or two,
Quaffingly, quaffingly !

" 'Tis I would be
The Laureate bold,
With my butt of sherry,
To keep me merry,
And nothing to do but to pocket my gold ! "

THE POETS LAUREATE OF ENGLAND.

CHRONOLOGICALLY ARRANGED.

Poets Laureate.	Birthplace.	Date of Appointment.	Death.	Burial.
Geoffrey Chaucer,	London, 1340 ?	1368, 25 Oct.,	1400,	Westminster Abbey.
Sir John Gower,	Yorkshire, 1325 ?,	1400,	1408,	St. Mary Overy, Southwark.
John Skelton,	Norwich, 1460 ?,	1489,	June, 1529 ?,	St. Margaret's Church, Westminster.
Edmund Spenser,	London, 1552 ?,	Feb., 1590,	16 Jan., 1599,	Westminster Abbey.
Samuel Daniel,	Taunton, 1562,	1598,	13 Oct., 1619,	Beckington.

NOTE:—The above have been styled Volunteer Laureates.

The following received Royal Letters Patent:

Benjamin Jonson,	London, 11 June, 1573 ?,	3 Feb., 1615-16,	6 Aug., 1637,	Westminster Abbey.
Sir William D'Avenant,	Oxford, Feb., 1606,	13 Dec., 1638,	7 Apr., 1668,	Westminster Abbey.

During the Commonwealth the Office was in abeyance.

John Dryden,	Northamptonshire, 9 Aug., 1631,	18 Aug., 1670,	1 May, 1700,	Westminster Abbey.
Thomas Shadwell,	Norfolk, 1642 ?		1688,	Nov., 1692, Chelsea Church.
Nahum Tate,	Dublin, 1652,		1692, 12 Aug., 1715.
Nicholas Rowe,	Little Beckford, 1674,		1715, 6 Dec., 1718,	Westminster Abbey.
Rev. Laurence Eusden,	Yorkshire, 1688,		24 Dec., 1718, 27 Sept., 1730,	[Coningsby ?].
Colley Cibber,	London, 6 Nov., 1671,		3 Dec., 1730, 12 Dec., 1757,	Westminster Abbey.
William Whitehead,	Cambridge, 1715,		19 Dec., 1757, 14 Apr., 1785,	South Audley-street Chapel.
Thomas Warton,	Basingstoke, 1728,		May, 1785, 21 May, 1790,	Trinity College, Oxon.
Henry James Pye,	London, 10 July, 1745,		1790, 11 Aug., 1813,	Pinner.
Robert Southey,	Bristol, 12 Aug., 1774,		4 Oct., 1813, 21 Mar., 1843,	Crosthwaite Church-yard.
William Wordsworth,	Cockermouth, 7 Apr., 1770,		6 Apr., 1843, 23 Apr., 1850,	Grasmere Churchyard.
Alfred Tennyson,	Somerby, Lincolnshire, 1809,		19 Nov., 1850, 6 Oct., 1892,	Westminster Abbey.
Alfred Austin,	Headingley, 1835,		1 Jan., 1896.

From Hamilton, The Poets Laureate; somewhat abridged and corrected.

PART I
THE VOLUNTEER LAUREATES

THE VOLUNTEER LAUREATES

GEOFFREY CHAUCER (1340?—1400).

1. The workes of | Geffray Chau | cer
newly printed / with | dyuers workes
whi | che were neuer in | print before: |
As in the table more playnly | dothe ap-
pere. | Cum priuilegio, [colophon] ¶
Thus endeth the workes of Geffray |
Chaucer. Printed at Lōdon | by Thomas
Godfray. | The yere of our lorde. M.D.
xxxii.

Folio. Black-letter. Double columns.
Woodcuts. First collected edition.

Collation: A, four leaves; B—Pp, in sixes; Qq, nine leaves; Rr—Vvv, in sixes.

SELECTED WORKS OF THE POETS LAUREATE

The "Canterbury Tales," with the exception of the "Ploughman's Tale," which was not printed until the edition of 1542, were published before, by Caxton, Wynken de Worde, and Pynson, and some of the minor works were printed by Caxton and Pynson, but this was the first attempt to collect Chaucer's whole works into one volume. It was edited by William Thynne (d. 1546).

This is the only known book printed by Thomas Godfray bearing a date.

JOHN GOWER (1325?—1408).

2. Jo, Gower de | confessione | Aman- |
tis, | ¶ Imprinted at London in Flete- |
ftrete by Thomas Berthe- | lette Printer
to the | kingis grace | AN. | M.D.XXX-
II. | Cvm Privilegio.

Folio. Gothic black-letter. Double columns. Second edition.

Collation: aa, eight leaves; A—Z and a—15, in sixes.

This was the "moral" Gower's only work in English. It exists in a large number of manuscripts following two versions differing slightly from each other. The earlier version is dedicated to Richard II, and has a complimentary notice of Chaucer; the later version, Richard's power having waned, is dedicated to Henry of Lancaster and says nothing about Chaucer.

The first printed edition by Caxton, of 1483, follows the later version. Berthelet, printer to the king, in this edition followed Caxton's text, but in modernized spelling; he added the dedication to Richard of the early manuscript version, in a preface, and gives an account of Gower's tomb and of his friendship with Chaucer.

JOHN SKELTON (1460 ?—1529 ?).

3. ¶ Here after | foloweth a ly- | tell boke,
whiche hath to name, | why come ye nat
to courte, | compyled by mayfter | Skelton poete | Laureate. | [Colophon] ¶
Imprinted | at London by | me Richard
| kele | dwellig in the | powltry at the | longe shop | vnder faynt | myldredes |
chyrch.

Octavo. Black-letter. First edition. Abt.
1550.

Collation: A—D, in eights.

Skelton's advances to Cardinal Wolsey not being well received, he poured out upon the prelate the vials of his wrath in several poems. In this "breathless rhyme" he turned upon him "the full force of his invective, and denounced the cardinal's luxurious life, insatiate ambition, and insolence of bearing."

The title-page has woodcut head- and foot-bands and a device made up of printers' ornaments in the shape of a cross. On the verso of the title-page is a woodcut representing two figures between head- and foot-bands, one of whom is crowned with laurel and is entitled "Skelton" in a scroll above; the other has a blank scroll above his head, but is supposed by Mr. Dyce to represent Wolsey. On the verso of the colophon leaf is a woodcut of the author seated at a reading-desk, with an inscription in the upper right-hand corner, "Skelton poyet."

SELECTED WORKS OF THE POETS LAUREATE

"At the Long Shop in the Poultry we can see the press at work almost without a break from the early years of the sixteenth century till the close of the first quarter of the seventeenth. . . . In 1542 Richard Kele's name is found in a Primer in Englysh which was issued from this house. . . . Perhaps the most interesting of his publications, next to the edition of Chaucer, which he shared with Toye and Bonham, are the series of poems by John Skelton, called "Why Come ye not to Courte? Colin Clout, and The Boke of Phyllip Sparowe." They were issued in octavo form, and were evidently very hastily turned out from the press. . . ."—Plomer.

4. ¶ Pithy plea- | faunt and profita- | ble
workes of mai- | fter Skelton, | Poete
Lau- | reate. | Nowe collected and |
newly published. | Anno | 1568. | ¶
Imprinted at London in Fleteftreate, |
neare vnto faint Dunstones | churche by
Thomas | Marfhe.

Octavo. Black-letter. First edition.

Collation: Four leaves (no signature);

A—Aa4, in eights.

5. Pithy Pleafaunt and Profitable | Workes
| Of | Maister Skelton, | Poete Laureate |

To King Henry the VIIIth. | Britannicarum Literarum lumen et decus. | Erasmi Epist. ad Hen. 8. | [Ornament]
London : | Printed for C. Davis in Paternoster Row. | MDCCXXXVI.

Duodecimo.

Collation: A, eight leaves; B—O₃, in twelves.

EDMUND SPENSER (1552?—1599).

6. The Faerie | Qveene. | Disposed into
twelue books, | Fafhioning | XII. Morall
vertues. | London | Printed for William
Ponfonbie. | 1590.

Quarto. First edition.

Collation: A—Qq₄, in eights.

The first edition of the first part. Although the title calls for twelve books, only six were ever published, the first three of which are contained in this volume. In some copies a blank space is left on page 332 for the insertion of several Welsh words, apparently indicating such copies as the first issue.

7. The Second | Part Of The | Faerie
Qveene. | Containing | The Fovrth, |
Fifth, and | Sixth Bookes. | By Ed.

SELECTED WORKS OF THE POETS LAUREATE

Spenser. | Imprinted at London for VVil-
liam | Ponfonby. 1596.

Quarto. First edition.

Collation: A — Kk4, in eights.

This is the first edition of the second part, uniform with that of the first part published in 1590, and also with the second edition of that part published in 1596, with which this is generally found.

8. Complaints. | Containing fundrie | small
Poemes of the | Worlds Va- | nitie. |
VVhereof the next Page | maketh menti-
| on. | By Ed. Sp. | London. | Imprinted for VVilliam | Ponfonbie, dwelling in Paules | Churchyard at the signe of | the
Bifhops head. | 1591.

Quarto. First edition.

Collation: A — Z, in fours.

9. Colin Clovts | Come home againe. | By
Ed. Spencer. | [Printer's mark] London |
Printed for VVilliam Ponfonbie. | 1595.
[Colophon.] London | Printed by T. C.
for William Ponfonbie. | 1595.

Quarto. First edition.

Collation: A — K, in fours.

SAMUEL DANIEL (1562—1619).

10. The | Poeticall | Essayes | Of | Sam.
Danyel. | Newly corrected and aug- |
mented. | Ætas prima canat veneres,
| prostrema tumultus. | At London |
Printed by P. Short for Simon | Water-
fon. 1599.

Quarto. First collected edition.

Collation: Three leaves (no signatures);
B—Z and Aa—Ee, in fours; A, two leaves;
B—E, in fours; F, three leaves; A, two leaves; B—C, in fours; D, two leaves;
A—K and Bb—Ff, in fours; Gg, two leaves.

The different divisions of this work were originally issued separately, and the unsold portions of the editions were brought together into one volume. The title-page to the "Civil Wars" was canceled, and in its place was substituted a general title followed by a dedication to Sir Charles Blunt, and a new printed title to the "Civil Wars." Beginning with signature B, this volume is identical with the parts as issued separately.

Headley says in his account of Daniel: "Though very rarely sublime, he has skill in the pathetic, and his pages are disgraced with neither pedantry nor conceit. We find both in his poetry and prose such a legitimate and rational flow of language as approaches nearer the style of the 18th than the 16th century, and of which we may safely assert that it will never become obsolete. He certainly was the Atticus of his day."

11. The | Works | of | Samvel Daniel |
Newly augmented. | Ætas prima canat
veneres | postrema tumultus. | London
| Printed for Simon Waterfon. | 1601.

Folio. Second collected edition.

Collation: A, two leaves; B—O, in sixes;
P—T, in fours; A—N, in sixes; A—C₄, in sixes.

The sixth book of the "Civill Warres" appears here for the first time. One of a few copies of the edition of 1602, dated 1601, and presented by the author to his friends.

12. The Civile Wares | betweene the Howfes of Lancafter | and Yorke corrected and
continued by Samuel Daniel one of the Groomes | of hir Maiesties most honorable | Priuie Chamber. | Ætas prima canat
veneres | postrema tumultus. | Printed |
At London | by Simon Waterfonne, |
1609: | Tockfonus sculp: |

Quarto. First complete edition.

Collation: A—C, in fours; D—R₄, in eights.

The emblematic title-page, with Daniel's portrait in the center compartment, was engraved by Thomas Cockson (fl. 1609–1636).

The edition contains eight books, ending with the marriage of Edward IV to Elizabeth Wydvil. In the "Epistle Dedicatorie" to the Countess of Pembroke the author says: "I trust I shall doo a gratefull worke to my Countrie, to continue the fame, vnto the glorious Vnion of Hen. 7: from whence is descended our present Happineffe."

THE VOLUNTEER LAUREATES

13. The | Whole | Workes Of | Samvel
Daniel Esquire | in Poetrie. | London, |
Printed by Nicholas Okes, for | Simon
Waterson, and are to be | sold at his shoppe in Paules Church- | yard, at the
Signe of the Crowne. | 1623.

Quarto.

Collation; A, two leaves; B and C, four leaves each; D — R₄, in eights; A — N₄, in eights; Aa — Tt₆, in eights.

This is the most complete edition of Daniel's works, and it was published after his death by his brother, John Daniel. The portion of the volume comprising the "Civil Wars" is that part of the identical edition of 1609 remaining unsold.

PART II
POETS LAUREATE
BY ROYAL LETTERS PATENT

REIGNS OF JAMES I AND CHARLES I

BENJAMIN JONSON, called BEN (1573? — 1637).

James the First, himself an author, was not slow to recognize the literary merits of others, and upon the publication of Jonson's works in 1616, Shakespeare being now dead, the king made him court poet, with a salary of one hundred pounds per annum, for the rest of his life.

Jonson's plays had already had great vogue, and his success in writing the masques and barriers so popular in Elizabeth's time established his position and reputation at court. But he was improvident, and later we find him thanking King Charles for a gift of an extra hundred pounds, sent to relieve him in his extremity. This gift also served as an occasion for a petition to the king to increase the annual stipend.

"The humble petition of poor Ben
To the best of monarchs, masters, men,
Doth most humbly show it
To your Majesty, your poet;

SELECTED WORKS OF THE POETS LAUREATE

That whereas your royal father
James the blessed, pleased the rather
Of his special grace to letters
To make all the Muses debtors
To his bounty, by extension
Of a free poetic pension,
A large hundred marks annuity
To be given me in gratuity.
.
Please, your Majesty, to make,
Of your grace, for goodness sake,
Those your father's marks your pounds."

The request was granted, and to the hundred pounds was added a tierce of Canary wine, the poet's favorite vintage.

Jonson's life was one of great variety. He was born in London, of good parentage. He was sent to a school connected with St. Martin-in-the-Fields Church and also to Westminster School, but it was as bricklayer's apprentice, soldier in the war in Flanders, actor and mender of old plays, as well as by his life-long habit of study, that he gained the knowledge of men and things which stands out so conspicuously in his virile dramas, masques, hymns and prose writings.

An extensive traveler for his day, he was widely known among men of mark. Bluff and outspoken, he often fell into troubles which a less honest man might have avoided. Prodigal of his means and loving "Spanish canary wine" not wisely, his last days were unhappy.

At his death it was proposed to erect a monument to his memory in Westminster, but the plan was never carried into execution. It is doubtful if any sculptured structure could so fitly commemorate his genius as the simple lines written by Sir John Young, "O rare Ben Jonson."

14. The | Workes | of | Beniamin Jonson. |
-neque, me vt miretur turba, | laboro :
| Contentus paucis lectoribus. | Imprinted
at | London by | Will Stansby | An° D.
1616.

Folio. First collected edition.

Collation: Engraved title-page, one leaf;

A — Qqqq4, in sixes.

It will be seen that in this folio, published in 1616, the author did not include the comedies of Bartholomew Fair, produced in 1614, and the Devil's an Ass, produced in 1616. It is probable, also, that a number of minor pieces written before this time (many are without any date) were reserved by the author for a future volume of his collected Works:

"He seems," says Gifford, "to have meditated a complete edition of all his works; but he apparently grew weary towards the conclusion of the volume, and never (unless peculiarly called upon) had recourse to the press afterwards."—Allibone.

"The second folio is a wretched continuation of the first, printed from the MSS. surreptitiously obtained during his life or ignorantly hurried through the press after his death. It bears a variety of dates, from 1631 to 1641 inclusive. It is probable that he looked forward to a period of retirement and ease; but the loss of his MSS. by fire, and the fatal illness which almost immediately afterwards seized him, rendered all such views abortive. It is remarkable that he calls his Epigrams 'Book the First'; he had, therefore, others in his hand; but they have perished."—Memoir of Jonson.

SELECTED WORKS OF THE POETS LAUREATE

Stansby, the printer of the book, was one of the best of his time; he had a good stock of type, his ornaments were well designed, and his presswork is better than most of that done by his contemporaries.

The emblematic title-page, in compartments, was engraved by W. Hole or Holle (fl. 1600-1630).

15. The | VVorkes | of | Benjamin Jonson. |
The second Volume. | Containing | These
Playes, | Viz. | 1 Bartholomew Fayre. |
2 The Staple of Newes. | 3 The Divell is an Affe. | London, | Printed for Richard
Meighen, | 1640.

Folio. First edition.

Collation: A, six leaves; B — M, in fours;
Aa — Cc, in fours; D — H, in fours; I, six leaves; N — Y₄, in fours; B — Q, in fours; R, two leaves; S — X, in fours; Y, two leaves; Z, four leaves; Aa — Oo, in fours; Pp, two leaves; Qq, four leaves;
A — K, in fours; L, two leaves; M — R,
in fours; A — P, in fours; Q, two leaves;
R — V, in fours.

16. Ben: Ionfon's Exe- | cration againſt |
Vvľcan. | VVith divers Epigrams by | the fame Author to ſeverall | Noble Perſon-
ages in | this Kingdome. | Never Published before. | London : | Printed by J.

O. for John Benfon, and | are to be sold at his shop at St. Dunstons | Church-yard in Fleet-streete. 1640.

Quarto. First edition.

Collation : Portrait ; A — F, in fours ; f, two leaves ; G, four leaves.

"Between this date [1621] and 1623 occurred the greatest calamity of Jonson's private life, the burning of his library, which, although repeatedly impoverished by forced sales (Conversations, § 13), was probably among the richest in England, and was, moreover, stored with poetic and scholarly lucubrations of his own. His 'Execration against Vulcan,' in which he made poetic capital of his loss, enables us to appreciate its exact extent."—Dictionary of National Biography.

The portrait of Jonson included in the volume is the well-known engraving by Robert Vaughan (fl. 1650). It has below an inscription of eight lines in Latin and the following couplet signed by Ab. Hall :

"O could there be an art found out that might Produce his shape soe lively as to Write !"

In its first state it had an additional inscription,—
"Are to be sould by William Peake,"—and was probably issued as a separate print. That inscription was then erased, and it was used to ornament the above volume and the collected "Works" of the same date.

17. Q. Horatius | Flaccus : | His Art of Poetry. | Englished By | Ben: Jonson | With

other Workes of the | Author, never
Printed | before. | London: | Printed by
J. Okes, for John | Benfon. 1640.

Duodecimo. First edition.

Collation: Frontispiece; A—C, in twelves;
D, five leaves; d, fourteen leaves; E, four leaves; e, twelve leaves; F and G, twelve leaves each.

The frontispiece was engraved by William Marshall (fl. 1630–1650). It is a portrait bust of Jonson, laureated, standing in a niche, with the inscription below: “Q. Horatius Flaccus, his Art of Poetry. Enlighth by Ben: Jonson. London. Printed for John Benfon. 1640.”

REIGNS OF CHARLES I AND
CHARLES II

SIR WILLIAM D'AVENANT (1605/6
—1668).

The son of a vintner and innkeeper, D'Avenant received his early education in his native town, Oxford, first “in the Free School joining to Magd. Coll.,” and then at Lincoln College.

SIR WILLIAM D'AVENANT

D'Avenant was the cleverest child of the family, and is in explanation of this, coupled with the fact that Shakespeare was a frequent guest at the D'Avenant inn, that the following story comes down to us from Pope:

"One day, when Shakspeare was just arrived, and the boy sent for from school to him, a head of one of the colleges, who was pretty well acquainted with the affairs of the family, met the child running home, and asked him whither he was going in so much haste: the boy said, 'to my godfather Shakspeare.'—'Fie, child,' says the old gentleman, 'why are you so superfluous? Have you not learnt yet that you should not use the name of God in vain?'"

Pope adds that Sir William seemed fond of having this taken for truth.

He first came to court as a page, and there he spent his life, sharing the vicissitudes of the Royalists, to whose cause he was always attached, taking an active part in the Civil War, which services brought him the honor of knighthood after the siege of Gloucester, in 1643. On his way to Virginia, on a mission for the king, he was captured by the agents of the Parliament and imprisoned in Cowes Castle and in the Tower of London.

After Jonson's death, D'Avenant was appointed to the vacant laureateship, though, unlike Jonson, he owed it rather to the favor of the queen than to real merit. Charles II restored him to the office after its interruption by the war, and also granted to him and Thos. Killigrew "full power and authority to erect two companies of players," "not holding it necessary totally to suppress the use of theaters, because wee are assured, that, if the evill and scandall in the plays that now are or have bin acted were taken away, the same might serve as innocent and harmlesse divertisement for many of our subjects."

SELECTED WORKS OF THE POETS LAUREATE

He became manager of various playhouses, where his plays were successfully performed, and where he put into operation some of his theories for the improvement of the stage, among them being the giving of female parts to women.

Though D'Avenant was not one of the great poets, Colley Cibber's dictum is probably true, that to him the English stage "stands more deeply indebted than to any other individual, so far as zealous application deserves to be considered in promoting those rational pleasures that are fitted for the entertainment of a civilized people."

18. Madagafcar ; | With Other | Poems. |
By | W. Davenant. | London, | Printed
by John Haviland for Thomas Walkly, | and are to be sold at his shop at the Flying Horfe | neare Yorke house. 1638.

Small octavo. First edition.

Collation: A, nine leaves; B—GII, in twelves.

The author's appreciative exclamation, "If these Poems live, may their Memories, by whom they were cherish'd, End. Porter, H. Iarmyn, live with them," prefaces commendatory verses by Sir J. Suckling, T. Carew, W. Habington, and Endimion Porter. The volume contains one of D'Avenant's first attempts at composition, an ode called, "In Remembrance of Mafter William Shakespeare," proving his admiration, whatever his relation to the great poet may have been.

19. Gondibert: | An Heroick | Poem, | Written By | S^r William D'Avenant. [Printer's
mark] | London, | Printed by Tho. New-comb for John Holden, and are to | be fold at his Shop at the sign of the Anchor in the | Nevv-Exchange, 1651.

Quarto. First edition.

Collation: A — Kkk₃, in fours. A is blank.

Two books of "Gondibert" were written in Paris before D'Avenant started for Virginia; half of the third book was written during his confinement in Cowes Castle, and it was published in an unfinished state while its author was still a prisoner in the Tower of London. In the "Postscript to the Reader" the author says: "But 'tis high time to strike Sail, and cast Anchor (though I have run but half my Course) when at the Helme I am threatned with Death; who, though he can visit us but once, seems troublefome; and even in the Innocent may beget such a gravity, as diverts the Mufic of Verse."

D'Israeli says of the poem: "The fortunes and the fate of this epic are as extraordinary as the poem itself. Davenant had viewed human life in all its shapes, and had himself taken them. A poet and a wit, the creator of the English stage, a soldier, an emigrant, a courtier, and a politician and at all times a philosopher, he was, too, a state prisoner, awaiting death with his great poem in his hand."

20. Poem, | To The | King's | Most | Sacred
Majesty. | By | S^r William D'Avenant.
London, | Printed for Henry Herring-
man, at the Anchor in the Lower | Walk
of the New Exchange. 1663.

Quarto. First edition.

Collation: A — E, in fours. A₁ and E₄ are blank.

21. The | Works | of | S^r William D'avenant K^t | Consisting of | Those which were formerly Printed, | And | Those which he design'd for the Prefs: | Now
Published | Out of the Authors | Original Copies. | London: | Printed by T.
N. for Henry Herringman, at the Sign of the | Blew Anchor in the Lower Walk
of the New | Exchange. 1673.

Folio. First complete edition.

Collation: Portrait; three leaves; A — Eeez, in fours; A — Ppp, in fours; Aaaa —
Oooo, in fours.

Thomas Newcomb, the printer of the work, was one of the largest employers of labor in the trade at this time. He had "three presses and a proof press, twelve workmen and one apprentice." — Plomer.

JOHN DRYDEN
REIGNS OF CHARLES II AND JAMES II

JOHN DRYDEN (1631—1700).

D'Avenant died in 1668, but the post of laureate was not filled until 1670, when Charles II gave it to "John Dryden, Master of Arts, in consideration of his many acceptable services theretofore done to his present Majesty, and from an observation of his learning and eminent abilities, and his great skill and elegant style both in verse and prose." Dryden received at the same time the post of royal historiographer. The salaries from both these offices amounted to £200, with the annual butt of Canary wine. But that he did not consider this lavish pay, we may infer from his lines in "Threnodia Augustalis, a Funeral Pindarique Poem Sacred to the Happy Memory of King Charles II":

"The officious Muses came along,
A gay, harmonious quire, like angels ever young.
Though little was their hire, and light their gain,
Yet somewhat to their share he threw,
Fed from his hand, they sung and flew
Like birds of Paradise, that lived on morning dew."

Dryden's "learning and eminent abilities" had been shown in his poems and plays, to be sure, but it may also have been his political opinions, loudly expressed, which made him so "acceptable" to the king. Austin and Ralph say: "There is no doubt that the poet's early opinions were tinged with Puritanism, and that he had some hopes of patronage and promotion while that party was in power." And again: "His interest lay entirely with the Puritan party. In 1658, on the death of Cromwell, he poured forth an elegy. Spratt, Waller, and other poets paid their tributes also, but Dryden's lines were good enough to create great expectations from future efforts of his Muse." Whatever his hereditary religious and political views, Dryden found no difficulty in changing them whenever worldly advantage demanded. On the return of Charles II, he paid him tribute in the "Astræa Redux"; and later, to attract the attention of the pious James, who, though he had appointed him laureate, had cut off the butt of Canary from his annual pay, he wrote the "Hind and Panther" as an argument for Roman Catholicism. But in the end these changes played him false, for, under the Protestant William, the Lord Chancellor Dorset deposed the Papist poet from office.

Austin and Ralph say too: "It is trite to tell any well-informed reader that Dryden was satirist, dramatist, didactic poet, essayist, translator, controversialist, and critic; that he was monarch of his own age, and the idol of the first men of the next; that his life is the history of half a century; and that he is at once the glory and the shame of our literature."

22. A | Poem | Upon The | Death | Of | His Late Highness, | Oliver, | Lord Protector | Of | England, Scotland, & Ireland. |
Written by Mr. Dryden. | London, | Printed for William Wilfon; and are to be sold in | Well-Yard, near Little St.
Bartholomew's | Hospital, 1659.

Quarto.

Collation: A, four leaves; B, two leaves.

23. Aſtræa Redux. | A | Poem | On the
Happy | Reſtoration & Return | Of His
Sacred Majeſty | Charles the Second. |
By John Driden. | Jam Redit & Virgo,
Redeunt Saturnia Regna. Virgil. | London, | Printed by J. M. for Henry Herringman, and are to be fold at | his Shop, at the Blew-Anchor, in the lower Walk
of the New-Exchange, 1660.

Folio. First edition.

Collation: One leaf without ſignature;
B — D, in twos.

24. The Medall. | A | Satyre | Againſt |
Sedition. | By the Authour of Abſalom
and Achitophel. | Per Graiûm populos,
mediæque per Elidis Vrbem | Ibat ovans;
Divumque ſibi poſcebat Honores. | London, | Printed for Jacob Tonſon at the
Judge's Head in | Chancery-Lane, near Fleet-ftreet. 1682.

Quarto. First edition.

Collation: A, four leaves; a, two leaves;
B — D₂, in fours.

“The rejection by the London grand jury, on November 24, 1681, of the bill of high treason preſented

SELECTED WORKS OF THE POETS LAUREATE

against Lord Shaftesbury was celebrated by a medal having on one side a portrait of Shaftesbury, and on the other a sketch of London. Dryden's satire on it was published in the beginning of March, 1682, within four months after the first publication of 'Absalom and Achitophel.' A second edition appeared in 1683, and a third was published in 1692. Like 'Absalom and Achitophel,' it was published anonymously, and Dryden's name did not appear on the title-page of any edition of either poem in his lifetime."—Christie.

Dryden's satire called forth several answers, among which are "Satire to his Muse" and the "Medal of John Bayes," by Thomas Shadwell. Shadwell's attack was answered by Dryden in "Mac Flecknoe." Pope used "The Medal" as a model when he wrote his "Dunciad."

25. Mac Flecknoe, | Or A | Satyr | Upon
The | True-Blew-Protestant | Poet, T.
S. | By the Author of | Absalom &
Achitophel | London, | Printed for D.
Green, 1682.

Quarto. First edition.

Collation: A, four leaves; B, three leaves.

"'Mac Flecknoe' was published in October, 1682. It was published anonymously, but Dryden spoke of the poem as his own in his 'Essay on Satire,' 1692, and 'Mac Flecknoe' is printed at the beginning of the volume of Miscellanies edited by Dryden in 1684. The publication in this volume was the second edition of the poem; a third edition, a reprint of that of 1684, appeared in 1692. The first edition contained many misprints. . . . The text, as altered in 1684, is Dryden's authorized text."—Christie.

By Mac Flecknoe Dryden meant "poetical son of Flecknoe"—Richard Flecknoe, a dull poet, then deceased, and of use, therefore, for the purpose of satire. There is no evidence that Flecknoe ever offended Dryden. His "Epigrams," 1670, contain some lines addressed to Dryden of a most complimentary character.

26. The | Hind | And The | Panther. | A |
Poem, | In Three Parts. | — Antiquam
exquirite matrem. | Et vera, in ceffu, patuit
Dea.— Virg. | London, | Printed for Jacob Tonfon, at the Judges Head in | Chancery Lane near Fleetstreet, 1687.

Quarto. First edition.

Collation: Four leaves without signatures;

B—S, in fours; T, five leaves.

James II succeeded to the throne February 6, 1685, and within a year after his accession Dryden became a Roman Catholic. Then he wrote "The Hind and the Panther," a defense of his new religion in verse. Dr. Johnson says of it: "A fable which exhibits two beasts talking theology, appears at once full of absurdity and it was accordingly ridiculed;" but Hallam defends it: "Yet notwithstanding their evident incoherence, which sometimes leads to the verge of absurdity, and the facility they give to ridicule, I am not sure that Dryden was wrong in choosing this singular fiction." Charles Montagu, the future Earl of Halifax, and Matthew Prior, replied to it in a parody called "The Hind and the Panther Transversed."

27. The | Comedies, | Tragedies, | And |
 Operas | Written by | John Dryden, Esq;
 | Now first Collected together, and | Corrected from the Originals. | In two volumes. | [The First Volume] London,
 | Printed for Jacob Tonson, at Gray's-
 Inn-Gate in Gray's-Inn-Lane; | Thomas
 Bennet, at the Half-Moon; and Richard
 Wellington, at | the Lute in St. Paul's Church-Yard. MDCCI.

Folio. First collected edition.

Two volumes. Portrait.

The portrait of Dryden, by Nicolas Edelinck (1680-1730), after Sir Godfrey Kneller (1646-1723), which was published with this edition, was also issued separately.

REIGN OF WILLIAM III.

THOMAS SHADWELL (1642?—1692).

“Crown you his last performance with applause,
 Who love like him our liberties and laws.
 Let but the ‘honest’ party do him right,
 And their loud claps shall give him fame, in spite
 Of the faint hiss of grumbling Jacobite.”

D’Urfey’s praise of Shadwell in the prologue of “The Volunteers” proved prophetic in a way, for our interest in this laureate is chiefly due to the fact that by the divine right of kings he won the bays which, by right of merit, belonged to Dryden, and because, as Dryden's political enemy, he became the subject of the severest satires in the English language.

THOMAS SHADWELL

But poetic merit does not seem to have been the standard of the Earl of Dorset when he appointed Shadwell, if we may judge by his side thrust at Dryden in his reply to a suggestion that there were poets worthier of the honor: "He did not pretend to determine how great a poet Shadwell might be, but was sure he was an honest man."

Shadwell's plays are said to "show great powers of observation and make us well acquainted with the manners of his age":

"With just, bold strokes he dashes here and there, Showing great mastery with little care;"

and in his life he was true to the principles of his art.

"Be thou dull,
Drink, swear, and roar: forbear no lewd delight Fit for thy bulk — do anything but write,"

says Dryden; and again:

"I will not rake the dunghill of thy crimes,
For who would read thy life that reads thy rhymes?"

This from his enemy; to make the picture fairer we must quote the words of his panegyrist, Dr. Nicholas Brady, of psalm-book fame, which were not meant to be sarcastic:

"And however the world might be mistaken in him, he had a much deeper sense of religion than many who pretend more to it."

"He never took his dose of opium but he solemnly recommended himself to God by prayer, as if he were then about to resign up his soul."

28. Epfom-Wells. | A | Comedy, | Acted at the | Duke's Theatre. | Written by |
Tho. Shadwell. | [Quotation]
Licensed, Feb. 17. 167 $\frac{2}{3}$ | Roger L'Ef-trange. | London, | Printed by J. M. for
Henry Herringman at the Sign of the | Blew Anchor in the Lower Walk of the
New Exchange. | M.DC.LXXIII.

Quarto. First edition.

Collation: A, three leaves; B—N, in fours; O, one leaf.

"The famous St. Evremond, in particular, has made no scruple of ranking it, in point of merit, with Ben Jonson's Bartholomew Fair; yet it could not escape the malevolence and envy of some of the author's contemporaries [Dryden], who said that it was not his."

— Baker. Biographia Dramatica.

29. The | Virtuoso. | A | Comedy, | Acted at the | Duke's Theatre. | Written by |
Thomas Shadwell. | Licens'd, May 31.
1676. | Roger L'Estrange. | London, |
Printed by T. N. for Henry Herringman, at the Anchor | in the Lower Walk of the New Exchange, 1676.

Quarto. First edition.

Collation: A — M₄, in fours.

According to Langbaine, the "Virtuoso" was well received. "None since Jonson's time had ever drawn so many different characters of humours, and with such success." Pope tells us that Wycherley had said of our author: "He knew how to start a fool very well, but that he was never able to run him down."

30. The | Medal | Of | John Bayes: | A |
Satyr | Against | Folly and Knavery. |
—— Facit indignatio versus. | [device]
London: | Printed for Richard Janeway.
1682.

Quarto. First edition.

Collation: One leaf without signature; A—D, in fours.

This, with the "Epistle to the Tories," was Shadwell's reply to Dryden's "The Medal," in which . . . "he grossly libelled his opponent, both as poet and man, calling him an 'abandoned rascal,' 'half wit, half fool.'" It so angered Dryden that he devoted a new satire to Shadwell, who had once been his friend—"Mac Flecknoe, or a Satire on the True Blew Protestant Poet, T. S."

31. A | Congratulatory Poem | To the Most Illustrious | Queen | Mary | Upon Her |
Arrival | In | England. | By | Tho.
Shadwell. | London: | Printed for James
Knapton, at the Sign of the Crown in S.
Paul's Church- | Yard. MDCLXXXIX.

Folio. First edition.

Collation: A, four leaves.

32. The Dramatick | Works | of | Thomas Shadwell, Esq; | In Four Volumes. | London: | Printed for J. Knapton, at the Crown in St. | Paul's Church-Yard; and J. Tonson, at | Shakefpear's Head over-againft Katharine-Street | in the Strand. MDCCXX.

Duodecimo. First collected edition.
Four volumes. Plates.

The first volume has a portrait of Shadwell, ætat 55, engraved by Simon Gribelin, Jun. (1661-1733).

Edited by Shadwell's eldest son, Sir John Shadwell.

REIGNS OF WILLIAM III, ANNE AND GEORGE I

NAHUM TATE (1652 — 1715).

The office of laureate with "poor Nahum" in it insured for nearly five and twenty years the activity of a poet who, to repeat the sneering words of Pope, "Steals much, spends little, yet has nothing left," or who, as Sir Walter Scott said, "is one of those second-rate bards, who, by dint of pleonasm and expletive, can find smooth lines if any one will supply ideas." The office supplied more ideas to Tate than to any of its other incumbents, but while they were great in quantity, their quality was not as good as it might have been, if we may judge from the following specimens written in "sacred memory" of Charles II:

NAHUM TATE

"To farthest lands let groaning winds relate,
And rolling Oceans roar their master's fate."

Dryden was Tate's early friend and helped him with his continuation of "Absalom and Achitophel," contributing a hundred lines "as plainly distinguishable from the rest as a patch of gold upon cloth of frieze"; from Ben Jonson, Fletcher and Dekker he borrowed freely, and his adaptations and mutilations of Shakespeare are all well known. He made translations from the Latin, Greek and French, and, most commendable of all his work, he made, jointly with Dr. Brady, a version of the Psalms of David. The work he did as editor, translator, compiler and collaborator is longer and more to his credit than his original work.

Tate was obtrusively pious, and it is not surprising to find him appointed by the Earl of Dorset to the laureateship under William III, in 1692, instead of the worthier but lewder Congreve, whom Dryden championed. The surprise is less, too, when we read in his preface to "Brutus of Alba" that "to lay his tragedy at the feet of Dorset" "transports him more than the greatest success on the stage could have done," for we know that "praise is devotion fit for mighty minds."

After William's death Queen Anne reappointed him and placed the gift thereafter in the hands of the Lord Chamberlain.

"These are to certify that I have sworn and admitted Nahum Tate into ye place and quality of Poet-Laureate to her Majesty in ordinary, to have, hold, and exercise and enjoy the same place together with all right, profits, privileges, and advantages thereunto belonging, in as full and ample manner as any Poet-Laureate hath formerly held and of right ought to have held and enjoyed the same.

SELECTED WORKS OF THE POETS LAUREATE

"Given under my hand this 24th day of Decr., in the first year of her Majesty's reign.—"Jersey."

Little is known about Tate's private life, and it is an interesting fact that no portrait of him exists. He was often in financial difficulties and finally died in the Southwark Mint, run down by his creditors.

33. Poems. | By N. Tate. | London, | Printed by T. M. for Benj. Tooke at the Signe of | the Ship in St. Pauls, Church-yard, | MDCLXXVII.

Octavo. First edition.

Collation: A₂ — K₃.

The earliest published work of Tate. The volume contains verses on a wide variety of subjects. "One composition," to quote Austin and Ralph, "laments 'the present corrupted state of Poetry,' and is, doubtless, a striking example of the decay of which it complains."

34. Poems | Written | On several Occasions, | By | N. Tate. | The Second Edition enlarged. | London, | Printed for B. Tooke at the Ship in | St. Paul's Church-yard. 1684.

Octavo.

Collation: A, seven leaves; B—Q₁, in eights.

35. On The | Sacred Memory | Of Our
Late | Sovereign: | With A | Congratu-
lation | To His | Prefent Majesty. | —
Non defecit Alter | Aureus — | Written by N. Tate. | London, | Printed by
J. Playford, for Henry Playford, near | the Temple-Church: 1685.

Folio. First edition.

Collation: A — B, in twos.

36. An | Elegy | On The | Most Reverend Father in God, | His Grace, | John, |
Late | Lord Archbishop of Canterbury.
| By N. Tate, Servant to His Majesty. |
London: | Printed for B. Aylmer, at the Three Pigeons against the Royal- | Exchange in Cornhill; and W. Rogers at the Sun against | St. Dunstan's Church in Fleet-street. MDCXCV.

Folio. First edition.

Collation: A — D, in twos. A is unsigned.

37. A New Version | Of The | Psalms | Of |
David, | Fitted to the Tunes | Used in Churches. | By | N. Tate and N. Brady. |
London: | Printed by M. Clark: for the Company | of Stationers. 1696.

SELECTED WORKS OF THE POETS LAUREATE

Duodecimo. First edition.

Collation : Two leaves without signatures ;

A — O₄, in twelves.

An English metrical version of thirty-seven of the Psalms was published by Thomas Sternhold in 1549. John Hopkins, William Whittingham, Dean of Durham, and others translated the remaining hundred and thirteen at different times. The first complete edition, called "The Old Version," was published in 1562 and adopted by the Reformed Church of England in 1562-63. There was some opposition to the "new and modish" version, at first, although it had been approved and revised by the archbishop of Canterbury and licensed by the king.

"Tate's share in [this volume] cannot be apportioned ; but it is plausible to ascribe to him the ornate pieces of a Drydenesque character (of these Ps. cxxxvii, 'Thou, Lord, by strictest search hast known,' is the best). The Christmas hymn, 'While Shepherds Watched,' is generally attributed to him, and a few of similar feeling (e. g. Ps. xlii, 'As pants the hart'), which stand out above the doggerel mass, may be his also."—Dictionary of National Biography.

REIGN OF GEORGE II

NICHOLAS ROWE (1674—1718).

Tate was described as a silent man, with downcast look ; but Rowe was comely in person, with a vivacity and cheerfulness of disposition which won him many friends. He was successful politically as well as socially, and was made successively Under-Secretary to the Secretary of State for Scotland, Poet Laureate in 1715, Surveyor of Customs, Clerk of Council to the Prince of Wales, and Clerk of Presentations.

He was an industrious scholar. He translated Boileau's "Lutrin," La Bruyère's "Characters," Quillet's "Callipædiæ," and Lucan's "Pharsalia"; and he edited, in the modern sense, the works of Shakespeare for the first time.

As a dramatist Johnson says of him: "He seldom pierces the breast, but he always delights the ear, and often improves the understanding." What more could be expected from one whom "Pope charges . . . with the want of that valuable article, a heart, and Addison admitted its existence only to testify to the lightness of its material"?

His tragedies were, for the most part, well received. Players of his own day, like Thomas Betterton, Barton Booth, John Verbruggen, Mrs. Bracegirdle and Mrs. Oldfield, acted them with pleasure, so contributing to their success; while some of them long held the stage, and were played by Kean, Macready, Kemble, Mrs. Yates, Garrick and Mrs. Siddons.

In nothing is the contrast between Tate and Rowe so marked as in their work as laureates; but here again, over against Rowe's three short years of service, we must set Tate's weary grind of nearly five and twenty.

That the "Wicked Wasp of Twickenham" commemorated our poet in an epitaph, and not in the "Dunciad," of itself points a tale.

38. Tamerlane. | A | Tragedy. | As it is
Acted | At the New Theater | In | Little

Lincoln's-Inn-Fields. | By His Majesty's
 Servants | Written by N. Rowe Esq; |
 — Magnus ad altum | Fulminat Euphra-
 ten bello, Victorque volentes | Per Popu-
 los dat jura, viamq; affectat Olympo. |
 Virg. Georg. 4. | London, | Printed for Jacob Tonson, within Gray's-Inn-Gate, next | Gray's-Inn-Lane. 1702.

Quarto. First edition.

Collation: Three leaves; b, two leaves;

B—K, in fours.

"This play was written in compliment to King William III. whose character the author intended to display under that of Tamerlane . . . In pursuance of Mr. Rowe's intended compliment, it was long a constant custom at all the theatres, both in London and Dublin, to represent it on the 4th of November, which was that Monarch's birth-day.

"This was the tragedy which Rowe valued most, and that which probably, by the help of political auxiliaries, excited most applause."—Baker, Biographia Dramatica.

39. The | Fair Penitent. | A | Tragedy. |
 As it is Acted at the | New Theatre
 | In | Little Lincolns-Inn-Fields. | By
 Her Majesty's Servants. | Written by N.
 Rowe, Esq; | Quin morere, ut merita es,
 ferroque averte dolorem. | Virg. Æn.

Lib. 4. | London, | Printed for Jacob
Tonfon, within Grays-Inn Gate next |
Grays-Inn Lane. 1703.

Quarto. First edition.

Collation: A, three leaves; a, four leaves;

B — I, in fours.

Baker says of "The Fair Penitent":

"This play is so well known, and is so frequently performed, and always with the greatest applause, that little need be said of it, more than to hint that the groundwork of it is built on the 'Fatal Dowry' of Massinger."

But Sir Walter Scott thought differently, for he complained in his "Essay on the Drama":

"It is a remarkable instance of the decay of dramatic art at this period that several of the principal authors of the time felt themselves at liberty to write imitations of old plays belonging to the original school, by way of adapting them to the taste of their own age."

Richardson owed his "Lovelace" and "Clarissa" to the villain and the heroine of this play, and our common speech to-day is indebted to it for a "gallant, gay Lothario."

40. Poems | On | Several Occasions. | By
N. Rowe, Esq; | London: | Printed for
E. Curll at the Dial and Bible against |
St. Dunstan's Church in Fleet-street.
1714.

Quarto. First edition.

Collation: A — E 3, in fours.

41. The | Poetical Works | Of | Nicholas
Rowe, Esq; | Late Servant to his Majesty. | The Second Edition. | London. |
Printed for J. Tonson, E. Curll, T. Jaun-
| cy, A. Bell, J. Darby, A. Bettesworth, |
J. Pemberton, J. Hooke, C. Rivington, |
R. Cruttenden, T. Cox, J. Battely, | F.
Clay and E. Symon, M.DCC.XX.

Duodecimo.

Collation: Portrait; two leaves; B—E 10,
in twelves.

The portrait of Rowe was engraved by Gerard Van der Gucht (1696-1776).

42. The | Dramatick Works | Of | Nicholas
Rowe, Esq; |
Volume the First. | Containing, |
The Ambitious | | The Fair Peni- |
Step-Mother. | | tent. |
Tamerlane. | | Ulysses. |

Nos tamen hoc agimus, tenuiq; in pulvere fulcos | Ducimus, & Littus sterili
verfamus aratro. | Juv. Sat. VII. | London, | Printed: And Sold by T. Jauncy,
at the Angel | without Temple-Bar.
MDCCXX.

43. The | Dramatick Works | Of | Nicholas
Rowe, Esq; | Volume the Second. |
Containing, |
The Royal Con- | | Jane Gray. |
vert. | | The Biter. |
Jane Shore. | |
London, | Printed: And Sold by T.
Jauncy, at the Angel | without Temple-
Bar. MDCCXX.

Duodecimo. Two volumes.

The work is illustrated with eight engravings by Louis du Guernier (1550—1620?), and the first volume has the portrait of Rowe by Sir Godfrey Kneller (1646—1723), engraved by George Vertue (1684—1756).

The separate plays have title-pages with varying dates, while appended to the second volume are :

"The Golden Verses of Pythagoras," 1719; "A Poem Upon the Late Glorious Successes of Her Majesty's Arms, &c.," 1719; and "Ode for the New Year, MDCCXVI," 1719.

REIGNS OF GEORGE I AND GEORGE II

LAURENCE EUSDEN (1688—1730).

When the Duke of Newcastle married Lady Henrietta Godolphin, young Eusden, recently graduated from Trinity College, Cambridge, celebrated the happy event in a poem. For this, his sixth flight into the realm of the Muses, he was rewarded by the duke, as Lord Chamberlain, with the laureateship.

SELECTED WORKS OF THE POETS LAUREATE

During his term of office Eusden wrote numerous laudatory poems, and our wonder at them as serious efforts is equaled only by our amazement at their serious reception by those to whom they were addressed. George II received the following tribute :

“Hail, mighty Monarch! whom Desert alone
Would, without Birthright, raise up to the throne;
Thy virtues shine particularly nice,
Ungloom'd with a confinity to vice.”

Perhaps the poet's lines addressed to the same monarch, if applied to himself, will explain his bombast :

“Streams which in silence flowed obscure before,
Swell'd by thy conquests, proudly learn'd to roar.”

Little is known of Eusden's life except that he took orders and took to drink. What the Duke of Buckingham said of him when he was appointed laureate sums up his case :

“At last rush'd in Eusden, and cried, who shall have it
But I, the true Laureate, to whom the King gave it?
Apollo begg'd pardon, and granted his claim,
But vowed, that till then, he had ne'er heard his name.”

Apollo's ignorance seems to be general. Eusden's name does not appear in the Encyclopædia Britannica, and it is seldom seen outside of the list of the poets laureate.

44. Three | Poems ; | The First, | Sacred to the Immortal Memory of the | late King ;
| The Second, | On the happy Succession,
and Coronation | of His present Majesty ;
| And A Third | Humbly Inscrib'd to the Queen. | By Laurence Eusden, Servant
to His Majesty. | Ille Deûm Vitam ac-cipiet, Divisque videbit | Permixtos Herôas, & Ipse videbitur Illis! Virg. | —
Strepitus fastidit inanes, | Inque Animis
Hominum Pompâ meliore triumphat.
Claud. | — Utinam modò dicere possem |
Carmina digna Deâ, certè Dea Carmine
digna est! Ovid. | The Second Edition. |
London: | Printed for J. Roberts in Warwick-Lane. 1727.

Folio. First edition.

Collation: A — G 1, in twos.

45. A | Poem | Humbly Inscribed | To His
Royal Highness Prince Frederic, | On
His Safe Arrival in Great Britain, | And
on His being Created Prince of Wales. |
By L. Eusden, A.M. | Late Fellow of
Trinity College, Cambridge, and now |
Poet-Laureat to His Majesty. | Fallax
O quoties Pulvis deludet Amorem |

SELECTED WORKS OF THE POETS LAUREATE

Suspensum, veniens omni dum crederis
 Horâ! Claudian. | Venisti tandem,
 Tuaque spectata Parenti | Vicit Iter durum
 Pietas? datur Ora tueri? Virgil. | Jam
 nihil, O Superi, querimur! Lucan. |
 London, | Printed: and Sold by J.
 Roberts in Warwick-Lane. | MDCC-
 XXIX.

Folio. First edition.

Collation: A—C, in twos.

46. A | Letter | To | Mr. Addison, | On The
 | King's | Accession to the Throne. | By
 Mr. Eusden | London: | Printed for J.
 Tonson, at Shakespear's Head, over- |
 against Catherine-street in the Strand.
 1714.

Folio. First edition.

Collation: One leaf; B—D, in twos.

47. Poetical | Miscellanies, | Consisting of |
 Original Poems | And | Translations. |
 By the best Hands. | Publish'd by Mr.
 Steele | London: | Printed for Jacob
 Tonson at Shake- | spear's Head over-
 against Catherine-street | in the Strand.
 MDCCXIV.

LAURENCE EUSDEN

Octavo. First edition.

Collation: Frontispiece; A—X₇, in eights.

This volume contains numerous poems by Eusden.

REIGN OF GEORGE II

COLLEY CIBBER (1671—1757).

"Cibber," says Warton, "with a great stock of levity, vanity, and affectation, had sense, and wit, and humour," and if we add to these qualities the fact that he was eminent as an actor, dramatic writer and theatrical manager, we have summed up his qualifications for the position of poet laureate. The appointment was made in 1730, and was directly due to the acceptable Whig views expressed in "The Nonjuror," a comedy founded on Molière's "Tartuffe," and produced with great success thirteen years before.

"But guessing who should have the luck
To be the Birth-day fibber,
I thought of Dennis, Tibbold, Duck,
But never dreamed of Cibber."

The elevation procured for Cibber his even more famous distinction of the chief place in the later versions of the "Dunciad." This last honor will without doubt preserve his name, if not his bays, longer than the first.

"Quoth Cibber to Pope, though in verse you foreclose,
I 'll have the last word; for by God I 'll write prose.
Poor Colley! Thy reasoning is none of the strongest,
For know, the last word is the word that lasts longest."

SELECTED WORKS OF THE POETS LAUREATE

Many other satires beside Pope's were directed against Cibber, and the fame of them tends to warp fair criticism and to turn our sympathies against him and cause us to forget his undoubted merits. This is unfair: "He was a great comedian, and, with allowances for his personal prejudices, the best critic of acting the stage has known." "By his writings he elevated the morality of the stage, and by his policy he improved its management."

His private life was not up to the standard of his writings. He was "fond of his bottle, fond of his jest, fond likewise of the rattle of the dice."

48. The | Non-Juror. | A | Comedy. | As it is Acted at the | Theatre-Royal, | By |
His Majesty's Servants. | Written by Mr.
Cibber. |

—Pulchra Laverna | Da mihi fallere; da
Justum, Sanctumq; videri, | Noctem
Peccatis, & Fraudibus objice Nubem. |
Hor. | London: | Printed for B. Lintot,
at the Crofs-Keys in | Fleetstreet.
MDCCXVIII.

Octavo. First edition.

Collation: A, seven leaves; A, four leaves;

B—F, in eights, one leaf unsigned.

The presentation copy to George I, to whom it is dedicated in English and in French.

49. The Dramatic | Works | Of | Colley Cib-
ber, Esq. | In Five Volumes. | [Volume

the First] [contents of each volume given on title-page.]

London: | Printed for J. Rivington and Sons, C. Bathurst, | T. Longman, T. Lowndes, T. Caslon, W. Ni- | coll, and S. Bladon. | M.DCC.LXXVII.

Duodecimo. Second collected edition.

Five volumes. Portrait.

The first volume contains a portrait of Cibber, engraved by John Miller (otherwise Johann Sebastian Müller) (1715?-1790?), after the painting by Jean Baptiste van Loo (1684-1745).

50. An Apology for The Life Of | Mr. Colley Cibber | Written By Himself | A New Edition With Notes And Supplement | By | Robert W. Lowe | With Twenty-Six Original Mezzotint Portraits By | R. B. Parkes, And Eighteen Etchings | By Adolphe Lalauze | In Two Volumes | Volume The First | London | John C. Nimmo | 14, King William Street, Strand | MDCCCLXXXIX.

Quarto. Two volumes. Portraits, plates.

The first edition was published in 1740.

"Swift was so much pleased with Cibber's Apology for his Life that he sat up all night to read it; upon hearing which, Cibber, it is said, shed tears for joy."

— Allibone.

SELECTED WORKS OF THE POETS LAUREATE

REIGNS OF GEORGE II AND

GEORGE III

—

WILLIAM WHITEHEAD (1715—1785).

Little was expected of the successor of Rowe and Eusden :

“Next Whitehead came, his worth a pinch of snuff,
But for a Laureate,—he was good enough.”

Whitehead was the son of a baker. By commendable diligence he worked his way through the University, and became tutor to the son of the Earl of Jersey. Both father and son remained Whitehead's warm friends and patrons, and it was due to Lady Jersey's influence with the Duke of Newcastle that he received the laureateship upon the death of Cibber.

Gray had been offered the vacant place, but had refused it, and Whitehead would have done wiser to follow Gray's example; for, to quote from his own lines, he knew the difficulties of the position :

“Obliged by sack and pension,
Without a subject or invention,
Must certain words in order set,
As innocent as a gazette —
Must some meaning half disguise,
And utter neither truth nor lies.”

Whitehead appears to have been a good man and not a bad poet as poets laureate go: he tried to reform the stage, for which he wrote numerous dramas to be acted with success by Garrick, and if, as poet laureate, he was subjected to severer criticisms than the poet tutor would have been, it was more the fault of his friends than his own.

WILLIAM WHITEHEAD

For Americans he has an especial interest: he was the poetaster during the Revolutionary War.

51. The | Danger | Of | Writing Verse: |
An | Epistle. | By Mr. W. Whitehead of
Clare-Hall in Cambridge. | Quæ poterant
unquam fatis expurgare cicutæ, | Ni me-lius dormire putem, quam scribere versus?
| Hor. Ep. 2. Lib. 2. | [Printer's mark]
Tully. | London: | Printed for R. Dods-
ley at Tully's Head in Pall-Mall; |
And Sold by T. Cooper at the Globe in Pater-noster-Row. 1741. | [Price One Shilling.]

Folio. First edition.

Collation: Two leaves; B — D, in twos.

52. Ann Boleyn | To | Henry the Eighth. |
An | Epistle. | By Mr. William Whitehead, | Fellow of Clare-Hall in Cambridge. | Ne quid inexpertum, frustra
moritura, relinquat. Virg. | [Printer's
mark] Tully. | London: | Printed for R.
Dodsley at Tully's Head in Pall-Mall; |
And Sold by M. Cooper at the Globe in

SELECTED WORKS OF THE POETS LAUREATE

Pater-noster Row. 1743. | [Price One Shilling.]

Folio. First edition.

Collation: Two leaves; B—D, in twos.

53. An | Essay | On | Ridicule. | By Mr. William Whitehead, | Fellow of Clare-Hall in Cambridge. | [Device] Tully. | London: | Printed for R. Dodsley at Tully's Head in Pall-Mall; | And Sold by M. Cooper in Pater-noster-Row. 1743. | [Price One Shilling.]

Folio. First edition.

Collation: Two leaves; B—E, in twos.

54. On | Nobility: | An | Epistle | To The | Right Hon^{ble}. the Earl of * * * * * |
- - - - - Sed Te cenferi laude Tuorum
| Noluerim - - - - - Juv. | By Mr. William Whitehead, | Fellow of Clare-Hall, Cambridge. | [Printer's mark] Tully. | London: | Printed for R. Dodsley, at Tully's Head in Pall-mall; and | fold by M. Cooper, at the Globe in Pater-noster-Row. | M.DCC.XLIV. | (Price One Shilling.)

Folio. First edition.

Collation: One leaf; B—D, in twos.

55. Atys | And | Adrastus, | A | Tale | In
the Manner of Dryden's Fables. | By Mr.
William Whitehead, Fellow of | Clare-
Hall in Cambridge. | Infelix! Nati funus
crudele videbis. | Hi nostri reditus, ex-pectatique triumph! | Hæc mea magna
fides! — Virg. Æn. viii. | The Second Edition. | [Ornament.] London: | Printed for R. Manby, on Ludgate Hill: |
And Sold by M. Cooper, in Pater-noster
Row. MDCCXLIV. | [Price One Shilling.]

Folio. First edition.

Collation: One leaf; B — D, in twos; E, three leaves.

56. Plays | And | Poems, | By | William
Whitehead, Esq. | Poet Laureat, | And
Register And Secretary To The Most |
Honorable Order Of The Bath. | In Two Volumes. | [Vol. I.] London, | Printed
for J. Dodsley, in Pall-Mall, | MDCC-LXXIV.

Octavo. First collected edition.

Two volumes. Portrait.

The first volume has an oval portrait of the author engraved by J. Collyer (1748–1827), after the painting by W. Doughty (d. 1782).

57. Poems | By William Whitehead, Esq. |
Late Poet Laureat, | And Register And
Secretary To The Most | Honorable
Order Of The Bath. | Vol. III. | To
Which Are Prefixed, | Memoirs | Of
His | Life and Writings. | By W. Mason,
M. A. | York: | Printed By A. Ward,
And Sold By J. Robson And | W. Clarke,
New Bond-Street, London, | And J.
Todd, York. | MDCCLXXXVIII.

Octavo. First edition.

Collation: Two leaves; a—p, in fours;
q, five leaves; A—Yz, in fours.

This volume is made up of "writings, either uncollected or unpublished" by the author and edited by William Mason (1724-1797).

REIGN OF GEORGE III

THOMAS WARTON (1728—1790).

Warton graduated from Trinity College, Oxford, and there he remained during the greater part of his life as a professor, first in the chair of Poetry, and later of Ancient History. There is a different stamp upon his work from that of his predecessors: he was of the university, they of the court, the theater, or from among the followers of the great.

His prose writings exceed in number and importance his poetical works, and it is as a man of letters that his "name is a landmark in the history of English literature." Christopher North went so far as to say, "the gods had made him poetical, but not a poet"; but even so, in his "poetical" works he "left his impress on the course of English literature."

His greatest work was his "History of English Poetry." He edited the works of Theocritus, Milton's "Poems upon Several Occasions," and "Anthologiæ Græcæ" of Kephala.

He was appointed laureate in 1785, and his first official ode called forth the famous squib, "Probationary Odes for the Laureateship," in which he is described as "a little, thick, squat, red-faced man"; and his own "birthday" ode was given "as signally characteristic of the ludicrous tameness incident to the compositions of laureated poetasters." This "most exquisite of literary jokes" "purported to be the competitive essays of Warton's rivals." They "are very comical, and abound in humorous allusions, which were greatly appreciated at the time, although now a key is required to their meaning."

It is pleasant to record that Warton received this joke with a good nature habitual to one of the most amiable of men.

58. Observations | On The | Faerie Queene
| Of | Spenser. | By Thomas Warton,
A.M. | Fellow of Trinity-College, Oxford.
| London: | Printed for R. and J. Dods-
ley; | And J. Fletcher, in the Turl,
Oxford. | 1754.

Quarto. Pp. [iv], 322. First edition.

59. The | History Of English Poetry, |
 From The | Close Of The Eleventh | To
 The | Commencement Of The Eight-
 centh Century. | To Which Are Prefixed, | Three Dissertations: | 1. Of The Origin Of Romantic Fiction In Europe. |
 2. On The Introduction Of Learning
 Into England. | 3. On The Gesta Ro-
 manorum. | By | Thomas Warton, B. D.
 | Fellow Of Trinity College, Oxford, And
 Of The Society Of Antiquaries, And Late
 | Professor Of Poetry In The University
 Of Oxford. | A New Edition | Carefully
 Revised, | With Numerous Additional
 Notes By The Late Mr. Ritson, | The
 Late Dr. Ashby, Mr. Douce, | Mr. Park,
 And Other Eminent Antiquaries, | And
 | By The Editor. | In Four Volumes. |
 [Vol. 1.] London: | Printed for Thomas
 Tegg, 73, Cheapside. | 1824.

Octavo. Four volumes. Portrait.

The work originally appeared as follows: the first volume was published in 1774; the second in 1778; "and the third in 1781, preceded by an additional dissertation on the 'Gesta Romanorum.'" A fourth promised volume never appeared.

This edition was edited by Richard Price (1790-1833), who "retained many of Warton's self-evident mistakes, and made some new ones."

HENRY JAMES PYE (1745—1813).

Pye was the next laureate, and nobody ever knew just why, but all agree that "no selection could have more effectually deprived the post of reputable literary merit."

It may not be amiss to set aside all attempts at a serious criticism of "Henry James Pye," as Southey always called him, and merely quote some of the many epithets and jingles which commemorate him.

The "poetical Pye," said Scott politely, while Byron scornfully referred to him "as eminently respectable in everything but his poetry," and Byron was certainly a judge of both morals and poetry: he believed it "Better to err with Pope, than shine with Pye." George Steevens plagiarized to express his thoughts of our poetaster:

"And when the pie was opened
The birds began to sing;
And was n't that a dainty dish
To set before a king?"

while Porson thought to gain more dignity with Latin:

"Poetis nos lætamur tribus,
Pye, Petro Pindar, Parvo Pybus.
Si ulterius ire pergis,
Adde his Sir James Bland Burges."

All this apropos of "a good Englishman, a gentleman in the highest sense of the word, a man of ancient family, of patriotic principles, of genial courtesy, and pleasant convivial habits,"—too bad the Canary was commuted in his day!—"an industrious student, a well-informed, cultivated, graceful writer," poet laureate to his Majesty King George—but no poet.

SELECTED WORKS OF THE POETS LAUREATE

60. Six | Olympic Odes | Of Pindar: | Being
those omitted by | Mr. West. | Translated into | English Verse. | With Notes. |
London: | Printed for Benjamin White,
| at Horace's-Head, Fleet-Street. | MD-
CCLXXV.

Duodecimo. Pp. vii, 73. First edition.

61. Adelaide: | A | Tragedy, | In Five
Acts, | As Performing | With Universal
Applause, | At | The Theatre-Royal,
Drury-Lane. | By | Henry James Pye, |
Poet Laureat. | Celebrare Domestica
Facta.—Hor. | London: | Printed for
John Stockdale, Piccadilly. | 1800. |
Price 2s. 6d. | Entered at Stationers'
Hall.

Octavo. Pp. 78. First edition.

"There is some fine writing in this piece, which will please in the closet; but it had no interest on the stage. The story is drawn from the latter part of the reign of Henry II. whose last days were so much embittered by the disobedient and unnatural conduct of his sons."—Baker, Biographia Dramatica.

ROBERT SOUTHEY

REIGNS OF GEORGE III, GEORGE IV,
WILLIAM IV, AND VICTORIA

ROBERT SOUTHEY (1774—1843).

Southey's own letters give the most interesting account we have of the circumstances connected with his appointment to the laureateship. In a letter to C. W. W. Wynn, Esq., bearing date of Sept. 20, 1813, he says :

"Pye's death was announced a day or two before my departure from Keswick, and at the time I thought it so probable that the not-very-desirable succession might be offered me, as to bestow a little serious thought upon the subject, as well as a jest or two."

The office was tendered to him at the wish of the Prince Regent, and he was given to understand that the "onus" of it would be dropped, but owing to a misunderstanding the place had also been offered to Scott by Lord Liverpool and the Marquis of Hertford. Scott generously declined the appointment, not from any foolish prejudice, as he wrote Southey, but because he was already provided for, and would not engross emoluments which ought to be awarded to a man of letters who had no other views in life.

In a long letter to Scott, written after his induction into office, Southey says: "I swore to be a faithful servant to the king, to reveal all treasons which might come to my knowledge, to discharge the duties of my office, and to obey the lord chamberlain in all matters of the king's service, and in his stead the vice-chamberlain. Having taken this upon my soul, I was thereby inducted into all the rights, privileges, and benefits which Henry James Pye, Esq., did enjoy, or ought to have enjoyed."

SELECTED WORKS OF THE POETS LAUREATE

"The original salary of the office was 100 marks. It was raised for Ben Jonson to £100 and a tierce of Spanish Canary wine, now wickedly commuted for £26; which said sum, unlike the Canary, is subject to income-tax, land-tax, and Heaven knows what taxes besides. The whole net income is little more or less than £90. It comes to me as a God-send, and I have invested it in a life-policy."

A few of his lines will announce the actual installation :

"I have something to tell you, which you will not be sorry at,
'T is that I am sworn in to the office of laureate.
The oath that I took there could be nothing wrong in,
'T was to do all the duties to the dignity belonging.
Keep this, I pray you, as a precious gem,
For this is the laureate's first poem."

"There, my dear Edith, are some choice verses for you. I composed them in St. James' Park yesterday, on my way from the chamberlain's office, where a good old gentleman usher, a worthy sort of fat old man, in a wig and bag, and a snuff-colored full-dress suit with cut steel buttons and a sword, administered an oath."

The "onus" of the office, the New Year's Ode (Shadwell's Birth Day Ode had already been abolished), was not done away with until some time after, much to Southey's disgust.

"Is it true that the Princess Charlotte is likely to be married? You will guess why I wish to know; though if I had not written half a marriage poem, I certainly would not begin one, for, between ourselves, I have not been well used about the laureateship. They require task verses from me—not to keep up the custom of having them befuddled, but to keep up the task—in- stead of putting an end to this foolery in a fair and open manner, which would do the court credit, and save me a silly expense of time and trouble."

ROBERT SOUTHEY

Letter to Grosvenor C. Bedford, Esq.,

Feb. 4, 1816.

62. Omne Solum Forti Patria. | Madoc. |
Book 1. |

[Device cut out and pasted on]

Duodecimo. Ll. 277, 38.

The original manuscript of "Madoc," written in 1799 and published in 1805.

63. Miscellanea Poetica.

Octavo. Ll. 137.

A collection of poems in Southey's handwriting, many of which were afterwards printed.

64. The Lay of the Laureate. | Carmen Nuptiale, | By | Robert Southey, Esq. | Poet Laureate, | Member Of The Royal Spanish Academy, And Of The | Royal Spanish Academy Of History. | London: | Printed for Longman, Hurst, Rees, Orme, And | Brown, Paternoster Row. | 1816.

Duodecimo. Pp. [3], 77. First edition.

65. The Poet's Pilgrimage | to | Waterloo: |
By | Robert Southey, Esq. | Poet Lau-

SELECTED WORKS OF THE POETS LAUREATE

reate, | Member Of The Royal Spanish
Academy, And Of The | Royal Spanish
Academy Of History. | [Quotation, three lines.] Pindar. Pyth. 2. | London: |
Printed For Longman, Hurst, Rees,
Orme, And | Brown, Paternoster Row. |
1816.

Sextodecimo. Pp. [iv], 232. Eight plates.
First edition.

The plates are steel-engravings by George Cooke (1781-1834), from sketches by E. Nash and C. Bell.

66. All For Love; | And | The Pilgrim To
Compostella. | By | Robert Southey,
Esq. L.L.D. | Poet Laureate, &c. | London: | John Murray, Albemarle Street.
| MDCCCXXIX.

Octavo. Pp. [v], 221. Plate.
First edition.

The volume has for a frontispiece a proof engraving by Edward Francis Finden (1792-1857), of a picture by R. Westall (1765-1836). A note in pencil by William Beckford reads: "All for pelf rather than All for Love in this breathing world. Nothing but the desire of adding to his stock of pence, and laudable view of presenting his little friends,—sweet listening dears,—with comfits & sugar plums, could have induced the Laureate to put forth such a doodle-some publication.—W. B."

ROBERT SOUTHEY

67. The Doctor, | &c. | [Device] Third Edition. | Vol. I. | London: | Longman, Rees, Orme, Brown, Green And | Longmans. | 1839.

Post octavo. Seven volumes. Plate.

This "glorified commonplace-book" "originally appeared as follows; vol. i. and ii. 1834, vol. iii. 1836, vol. iv. 1837, and vol. v. 1838. . . . Vol. vi. appeared in 1847, edited by Southey's son-in-law, the Rev. John Wood Warter. . . . The 7th, being the concluding volume, appeared also in 1847. . . ."—Lowndes.

68. The Doctor, | &c. | [Device] Vol. VII. | London: | Longman, Brown, Green, And Longmans. | 1847.

Volume seven has a colored frontispiece by John Glover (1767-1849), called "The Statues."

REIGN OF VICTORIA

WILLIAM WORDSWORTH (1770—1850).

Writing to Lady F. Bentinck in 1843, Wordsworth says:

"The Lord Chamberlain [Earl De La Warr], in terms the most honourable, has, with the Queen's approbation, offered me the vacant Laureateship. Had I been several years younger I should have accepted the office with pride and pleasure; but on Friday I shall enter, God willing, my 74th year, and on account of so advanced an age I begged permission to decline it, not venturing to undertake its duties. For though, as you are aware, the formal task-work of New Year and Birthday Odes was abolished when the appointment was given to Mr. Southey, he still considered himself obliged in conscience to produce, and did produce, verses, some of very great merit, upon important public occasions. He failed to do so upon the Queen's Coronation, and I know that this omission caused him no little uneasiness. The same might happen to myself upon some important occasion, and I should be uneasy under the possibility."

SELECTED WORKS OF THE POETS LAUREATE

The Prime Minister, Robert Peel, added his entreaty to the Lord Chamberlain's, promising that nothing should be "required" of the aged poet, and, all scruples being removed, Wordsworth finally accepted the position. He wrote but one ode in his official capacity, and that was probably only nominally by him.

69. Lyrical Ballads, | With | A Few Other Poems. | London: | Printed for J. & A. Arch, Gracechurch-Street. | 1798.

Octavo. Pp. [i], v, [i], 210, [i].
First edition.

70. Lyrical Ballads, | With | Other Poems. | In Two Volumes. | By W. Wordsworth. | Quam nihil ad genium, Papiniane, tuum! | Vol. II. | London: | Printed For T. N.

WILLIAM WORDSWORTH

Longman And O. Rees, Paternoster-Row, | By Biggs And Co. Bristol. | 1800.

Octavo. Pp. [iv], 227. First edition.

71. The Excursion, | Being A Portion Of |
The Recluse, | A Poem. | By | William
Wordsworth. | London: | Printed for Longman, Hurst, Rees, Orme, And
Brown, | Paternoster-Row. | 1814.

Quarto. Pp. xx, 447. First edition.

72. The | White Doe | Of | Rylstone; |
Or | The Fate Of The Nortons. | A
Poem. | By | William Wordsworth. |
London: | Printed For | Longman,
Hurst, Rees, Orme, And Brown, | Paternoster-Row, | By James Ballantyne And
Co., Edinburgh. | 1815.

Quarto. Pp. xi, 162. Plate.
First edition.

73. The | Miscellaneous | Poems | Of | William Wordsworth. | In Four Volumes. |
[Vol. I.] London: | Printed For Longman, Hurst, Rees, Orme, And Brown, |
Paternoster-Row. | 1820.

SELECTED WORKS OF THE POETS LAUREATE

Duodecimo. Four volumes. Four plates.
First collected edition.

The frontispieces to the first three volumes are engravings by John Charles Bromley (1795-1838), after the pictures by Sir George Beaumont (1753-1827). The frontispiece of volume four was engraved by Samuel William Reynolds (1773-1835) after a picture by Beaumont.

74. Memorials | Of A | Tour On The Continent, | 1820. | By William Wordsworth. | London : | Printed For | Long-
man, Hurst, Rees, Orme, And Brown, |
Paternoster-Row. | 1822.

Octavo. Pp. viii, 103. First edition.

75. Yarrow Revisited, | And | Other Poems.
| By | William Wordsworth. | —“ Poets
. . . dwell on earth | To clothe whate’er
the soul admires and loves | With language and with numbers.” | Akenside.
| London : | Printed for | Longman, Rees,
Orme, Brown, Green, & Longman, | Pat-
ernoster-Row; And | Edward Moxon,
Dover Street. | 1835.

Duodecimo. Pp. xv, 349. First edition.

76. The | Sonnets | Of | William Wordsworth. | Collected In One Volume, | With | A Few Additional Ones, Now First Published. | London | Edward Moxon, Dover Street. | MDCCCXXXVIII.

Octavo. Pp. xi, 477. Portrait.
First edition.

"No one since Milton has so adorned our language in this species of composition."—Lond. Lit. Gaz., 1838.

The autograph portrait, from the miniature painted by Margaret Gillies (1803–1887), was engraved by J. C. Armytage.

The book was bound by T. J. Cobden-Sanderson, in 1894, after his own design.

ALFRED TENNYSON, FIRST BARON TENNYSON (1809—1892).

"On November 19th my father was appointed Poet Laureate, owing chiefly to Prince Albert's admiration for 'In Memoriam.' Wordsworth had been now dead some months; and my father, as he has assured me, had not any expectation of the Laureateship, or any thought upon the subject: it seemed to him therefore a very curious coincidence, that the night before the offer reached him he dreamt that Prince Albert came and kissed him on the cheek, and that he said in his dream, 'Very kind, but very German.'

"In the morning this letter about the Laureateship was brought to his bedroom":

SELECTED WORKS OF THE POETS LAUREATE

“WINDSOR CASTLE, Nov. 5th, 1850.

“By the death of the late lamented Wm. Wordsworth the Office of Poet Laureate to the Queen became at Her Majesty’s disposal.

“The ancient duties of this Office, which consisted in laudatory Odes to the Sovereign, have been long, as you are probably aware, in abeyance, and have never been called for during the Reign of Her present Majesty. The Queen, however, has been anxious that the Office should be maintained; first, on account of its antiquity, and secondly, because it establishes a connection, through Her Household, between Her Majesty and the poets of this country as a body.

“To make however the continuance of this Office in harmony with public opinion, the Queen feels that it is necessary that it should be limited to a name bearing such distinction in the literary world as to do credit to the appointment, and it was under this feeling, that Her Majesty in the first instance offered the appointment to Mr. Rogers, who stated to Her Majesty, in his reply, that the only reason which compelled him gratefully to decline Her Majesty’s gracious intention, was, that his great age rendered him unfit to receive any new office.

“It is under the same desire that the name of the poet appointed should adorn the Office, that I have received the commands of the Queen to offer this post to you, as a mark of Her Majesty’s appreciation of your literary distinction.

“I have the honour to be, Sir,

“your obedient humble servant,

“C. B. PHIPPS.”

“He took the whole day to consider, and at the last wrote two letters, one accepting, one refusing, and determined to make up his mind after a consultation with his friends at dinner. He would joke and say, 'In the end I accepted the honour, because during dinner Venables told me, that, if I became Laureate, I should always when I dined out be offered the liver-wing of a fowl.'"

ALFRED TENNYSON

Lord Tennyson's reflections upon Wordsworth might aptly be applied to himself. Hallam Tennyson says again: "He was meditating his first Laureate poem, 'To the Queen,' and was especially thinking of a stanza in which 'the empire of Wordsworth should be asserted: for he was a representative Poet Laureate, such a poet as kings should honour and such an one as would do honour to kings; — making the period of a reign famous by the utterances of memorable words concerning that period.'"

77. Poems, | Chiefly Lyrical, | By Alfred Tennyson. | London: | Effingham Wilson, Royal Exchange, | Cornhill. | 1830.

Foolscap octavo. Pp. [iii], 154.

First edition.

"It had originally been intended to publish these poems conjointly with those of Arthur Hallam; but by the advice of Hallam's father the contributions of the latter were withdrawn. . . .

"Many of the poems in this volume were rejected and omitted from subsequent editions of Tennyson's Minor Poems."—The Bibliography of Tennyson.

78. The Princess; | A Medley. | By | Alfred Tennyson. | London: | Edward Moxon, Dover Street. | MDCCCXLVII.

SELECTED WORKS OF THE POETS LAUREATE

Foolscap octavo. Pp. [i], 164.
First edition.

79. In Memoriam. | London: | Edward
Moxon, Dover Street. | 1850.

Foolscap octavo. Pp. vii, 210.
First edition.

"The poem, written in a four-lined stanza—believed by the poet to have been invented by himself, but which had been in fact long before used by Sir Philip Sidney, Ben Jonson, and notably by Lord Herbert of Cherbury—had grown to its final shape during a period of seventeen years following the death of Arthur Hallam. Issued with no name upon the title-page, its authorship was never from the first moment in doubt."

—Canon Ainger.

80. Ode | On The Death | Of The | Duke
Of Wellington. | By Alfred Tennyson, |
Poet Laureate. | London: | Edward
Moxon, Dover Street. | 1852.

Octavo. Pp. 16.
First edition.

81. Maud, | And Other Poems. | By | Alfred Tennyson, D.C.L., | Poet Laureate. |
London: | Edward Moxon, Dover Street.
| 1855.

Foolscap octavo. Pp. [v], 154.
First edition.

82. Idylls Of The King. | By | Alfred Tennyson, D.C.L., | Poet Laureate. | "Flos regum Arthurus." | Joseph of Exeter. | London: | Edward Moxon & Co., Dover Street. | 1859.

Foolscap octavo. Pp. [v], 261.

First edition.

83. A Welcome. | By | Alfred Tennyson, D.C.L., | Poet Laureate. | London: | Edward Moxon & Co., Dover Street. | 1863.

Foolscap octavo. Pp. 4.

First edition.

"These lines were addressed to the Princess Alexandra of Denmark, on her arrival in England and her marriage with the Prince of Wales. . . . This separate edition is now a great rarity, though it could be bought at the time of its publication for a few pence."

—The Bibliography of Tennyson.

84. Becket | By | Alfred | Lord Tennyson | Poet Laureate | London | Macmillan and Co. | 1884

Foolscap octavo. Pp. [v], 213.

First edition.

Produced at the Lyceum Theatre by Henry Irving in 1893.

85. The | Death Of Ænone, | Akbar's
Dream, | And Other Poems | By | Alfred
| Lord Tennyson | Poet Laureate | With Five Steel Portraits Of The Author |
London | Macmillan and Co. | And New
York | 1892 | All rights reserved

Octavo. Pp. vi, 111. Five portraits.

First edition.

"Published the latter part of October, 1892. The proof was all revised by the Poet a fortnight before his death."—The Bibliography of Tennyson.

The Poems By Two Brothers and this volume are the only works of Tennyson published originally in Large-Paper copies.

ALFRED AUSTIN (1835 —).

Lord Rosebery having refused to appoint a successor to Alfred Tennyson as poet laureate, there was an intermission of four years, until Lord Salisbury, who, "as Matthew Arnold long ago noted, has a dangerous ignorance of literature," appointed the present incumbent on New Year's day, 1896.

86. The Season: | A Satire. | By | Alfred
Austin. | With Frontispiece Of "The
Modern Muse," By | Thomas George
Cooper. | Slender.—Why do your dogs
bark so? be there bears i' th' Town? |
Anne Page.—I think there are, Sir! I heard them talked of. | Slender.—I love

the sport well ; . . . but the women have so | cried and shrieked at it, that it passed. | Merry Wives of Windsor. | London : | Robert Hardwicke, 192, Piccadilly. | 1861.

Octavo. Pp. 74. Plate. First edition.

"One of the most notable and sorest points with Mr. Austin is the present fashion of low dresses as worn by ladies in the evening."—Sat. Rev., xii, 24.

AUTHORITIES ON THE POETS LAUREATE

87. The Lives | Of | The Poets-Laureate. | With An Introductory Essay On | The Title And Office. | By Wiltshire Stanton Austin, Jun., | B. A., Exeter College, Oxon.; | And John Ralph, M.A., | Barrister-At-Law. | [Quotation, five lines.] London : | Richard Bentley, New Burlington Street. | Publisher in Ordinary to Her Majesty. | M.DCCC.LIII.

Octavo. Pp. vi, [1], 428.

88. The | Poets Laureate | Of | England. | Being | A History Of The Office Of Poet Laureate, | Biographical Notices Of Its Holders, | Etc. By | Walter Hamilton. | Illustrated. | [Volume I.] | London : | Elliot Stock, 62, Paternoster Row.

| 1879

Octavo. Pp. xxv, [ii], 308. One volume extended to two by the insertion of numerous portraits and plates.

89. The Laureates | of England | From Ben
Jonson to Alfred Tennyson | With Selections From Their Works And An Introduction | Dealing With The Origin And
Significance Of | The English Laureate-
ship | By | Kenyon West | Vignette
Edition, With Numerous New | Illustrations | By | Frederick C. Gordon,
Esq. | New York and London | Frederick A. Stokes Company | Publishers |

Octavo. Pp. 20 + 459. Portraits, plates.

PORTRAITS

GEFFREY CHAUCER. Line engraving.

90. A half-length figure turned to the left, inclosed in an oval border which rests on a pedestal;
the whole surrounded by a rectangular border.
The oval is crowned with a laurel wreath and a ribbon bearing the inscription :

PORTRAITS

Geffrey Chaucer { Our Antient & Learned
English Poet, died 1400
Æta 72.

[Coat of Arms.] Anglia Chaucerum veneratur nostra Poetam, | Cui veneres debet patria
lingua suas. | Tho. Occleve Contemporar & discipulus ejusdem Chauceriad viv: delin.:
Geo. Vertue Sculp: 1717.

JOHN GOWER. Line engraving.

91. A full bust turned to the right, within an architectural framework, at the foot of which stand four volumes; one book is open and shows a picture of Gower's effigy and tomb.

Inscription, below. Joannes Gower | Armiger. | Anglorum Poeta Celeberrimus. | Chauceri Poeta | Contemporar. | G. Vertue Sculp 1727. | Honoritifs D^{no} Ioanni Levison Gower Domino Gower. | hanc Effigiem humillime D.D. | G. Vertue.

JOHN SKELTON. Stipple engraving.

92. A half-length figure turned toward the right: the face is turned toward the left.

Inscription, below. Iohn Skelton | Poet Lauret to King Henry the Eighth. |

From an Original Picture in the Possession of M^r Richardson. | Published Nov^r 1st 1797, by W. Richardson York House N^o 31 Strand.

EDMUND SPENSER. Line engraving.

93. A full bust, three-quarters face, in an oval resting on a pedestal. Above the oval is a pediment, partly covered with drapery, containing a laurel wreath, with the inscription: Edmund Spencer Obiit 1599.

Inscription, below. Anglica te vivo, vixit plauſitq Poefis; | Nunc moritura timet te mori-
ente Mori. | Camden. Geo: Vertue Sculp:
1727.

Honoralis Ioanni Guyse Tribuno Militum |
Singulari bonarum Artium Fautori, D.D.
G. Vertue.

SAMUEL DANIEL.

94. For a portrait of this Laureate, see the title-page of his "Civile Wares," 1609 (No. 12), engraved by Thomas Cockson or Coxson (f. 1609-1636.)

BEN JONSON. Line engraving.

95. A full bust, in an oval resting on a pedestal; the whole being inclosed within a rectangular border. Above the rectangle is a laurel wreath and a ribbon bearing the inscription: Benjaminus Johnson.

Obijt Anno { Dom. 1637.
Ætat. 63.

PORTRAITS

Inscription, below. Fronti nulla Fides huic non dicatur: APELLE | A tanto, VATES, èn redivivus ades. | Immortale duplex micat hic opus: Illius Arte | FORMA, tuâ a Pennâ FAMA, perennis erit |

E Pinacotheca Nobilissimi & Honoratissimi Ioannis Domini Sommers &c. Cui Tabulam hanc humillimè dicat. | Amico suo Mauritio Johnson I. C. Artium Amatori redicat 1730. G. Vertue | Gerard Honthorst pinxit. Geo: Vertue, Londini Sculp

BEN JONSON.

96. Oil painting, by Gerard van Honthorst.

Honthorst was born in Utrecht in 1590 and died there in 1656. He studied his art at the school of Bloemart and later in Italy. Returning to Utrecht he became fashionable and his reputation reaching England, Charles I. invited him to his court. He painted many pictures in England and also at the Hague, where he was made court painter to the Princess of Orange.

This is undoubtedly the original portrait of Jonson from which all later engravings have been made. Painted on wood. 12 x 15 inches.

SIR WILLIAM D'AVENANT.

Line engraving.

97. A full bust, in an oval resting on a pedestal; the whole being inclosed within a rectangle. The poet is crowned with the laurel wreath.

SELECTED WORKS OF THE POETS LAUREATE

Io. Grenhill pinx. W. Faithorne, Sculp.

Inscription, below. S^r William D'avenant
K!

This portrait was published in D'Avenant's Works, 1673.

"Will Davenant, asham'd of a foolish mischance
That he had got lately travelling in France,
Modestly hop'd the handsomeness of 's muse
Might any deformity about him excuse.

"Surely the company would have been content,
If they could have found any precedent;
But in all their records, either in verse or in prose,
There was not one Laureate without e'er a nose."

JOHN DRYDEN. Line engraving.

98. A half-length figure turned to the left, with the face turned toward the front. In the hand is a laurel branch. In an oval frame resting on a pedestal, the whole inclosed within a rectangle.

[Coat of arms.] Peint par le Chevalier
Kneller. Graué par le Cheualier Edelinck,
C.P.R.

Inscription, below. M^r John Dryden.

This portrait was also issued in the Dramatic Works, 1701.

THOMAS SHADWELL. Mezzotint.

99. A three-quarter-length figure turned toward and looking to the front.

PORTRAITS

I: Kerfsaboom pinx: W. Faithorne fec.
Cum Priuilego Regis. Sold by E. Cooper at y^e 3 pidgeons ni Bedford fstreet.

First state.

NAHUM TATE.

There is no engraved portrait of this poet.

NICHOLAS ROWE. Mezzotint.

100. A three-quarter-length standing figure, facing toward and looking to the front. Engraved by J. Faber, Senior.

Inscription, below. Nicholas Rowe, Esq^r, P.L.

Proof.

LAURENCE EUSDEN.

There is no engraved portrait of this poet.

COLLEY CIBBER. Mezzotint.

101. A three-quarter-length figure directed toward the left, facing toward and looking to the front. He holds a pen in his right hand, which a young woman is taking.

J. B. Vanloo pinx 1740. Edw^d Fisher fecit 1758.

Inscription, below. Colley Cibber, Esq^r
late Poet.-Laureat. | Printed for John Spils-bury Engraver, Map & Print Seller in Rufsell-Court Covent-Garden London.

SELECTED WORKS OF THE POETS LAUREATE

"Bromley calls the lady a Muse; but it is probably a portrait, perhaps that of his daughter, Mrs. Clarke."

— Smith.

WILLIAM WHITEHEAD.

Line engraving.

102. Full bust, turned to the right.

Drawn by J. Thurston. Engraved by W. Ensom.

Inscription, below. William Whitehead. | From a Picture by Wilson, in the Collection of | the Right Honorable the Earl of Harcourt. | London; March 1, 1821; Published by W. Walker, 8 Grays Inn Square.

THOMAS WARTON.

Mezzotint.

103. A full bust.

Inscription, below. The Rev^d M^r Thomas Warton.

London, Publish'd Dec^r 1; 1786, by W. Dickinson Engraver, N^o 158 Bond Street

The engraving is from the painting by Sir Joshua Reynolds.

HENRY JAMES PYE.

Mezzotint.

104. Full bust, with the head turned to the left. In an oval border within a rectangle.

Painted by S. I. Arnold. London. Published as the Act directs Feb^y 2. 1801. Engraved by B. Pym.

Inscription, below. Henry James Pye Esq^r

ROBERT SOUTHEY. Mezzotint.

105. A half-length figure, with the face turned toward the right.

Painted by Sam^l Lane Esq^r Engraved by Henry Dawe.

Inscription, below. Robert Southey. Esq^r
L.L.D. &c. &c. &c.

WILLIAM WORDSWORTH. Mezzotint.

106. A three-quarter-length figure, seated beside a table; the left hand resting on an open book. The head is turned to the right.

Painted by Miss Margaret Gillies. Engraved by Edward M^cInnes.

London. Republished Feb^y 15. 1853. By Thomas Boys, (Of The Late Firm of Moon, Boys & Graves) Print Sellers to The Royal Family, 467, Oxford Street: — Paris, E. Gambart & Co. 15, Rue Chalot — Déposé. Originally Published Aug^t 6, 1841. Proof.

WILLIAM WORDSWORTH.

107. Same as above.

Inscription, below. W^m Wordsworth.

ALFRED TENNYSON. Etching.

108. By Paul-Adolphe Rajon. Signed proof.

ALFRED TENNYSON. Etching.

109. By Paul-Adolphe Rajon. Proof signed by Tennyson.

Z2014.P7 G87

SUNY GENESEO

YGMM

Catalogue of an exhibition of selected w

3 0260 00282304 9

~~010~~

202721

Z Grolier club, New York
2014 Catalogue of an exhibition
P7 of selected works of the G87 poets laureate of England

MILNE LIBRARY
STATE UNIVERSITY COLLEGE
GENESEO, NEW YORK 14454

BORROWER HAS SOLE RESPONSIBILITY FOR RETURN BY DATE DUE SHOWN ABOVE

Z2014.P7 G87

SIWY, DENISE D.

Catalogue of an exhibition of selected w

YGMN

3 0260 00282304 9